SUPPLEMENT TO THE LONDON GAZETTE, TUESDAY, JULY 11.

An account of the Battle fought near Aspern on the Marchfield, on the 21st and 22d o May, 1809, between the archduke Charles of Austria, generallissimo of the Imperial Austrian armies, and the emperor Napoleon, commander in chief of the French and allied armies.

[CONCLUDED.]

Battle of the 22d of May.

Corps of Lieut. Gen. Hiller. With the morning's dawn the enemy renewed his attacks, which far surpassed in impetuosity those of the preceding day. It was a conflict of valor and mutual exasperation. Scarcely had the French guards compelled gen. Wacquant to abandon Aspern, when the regiment of Klebek again penetrated into the burning village, drove back the choicest troops of the enemy, and engaged in a new contest in the midst of the conflagration, 'till, at the expiration of an hour, it was also obliged to give way. The regiment of Benjovaky now rushed in, and at the first onset gained possession of the church yard, the walls of which field marshal lieut. Hiller immediately ordered the first division of pioneers to pull down, and the church, together with the parsonage, to be set on fire. Thus was this regiment, supported by some battalions commanded by gen. Bianchi, at length enabled to maintain itself at the entrance of the village, after overcoming the resistance, bordering on despair, opposed by the flower of the French

Neither could the enemy produce any farther effect upon the bushy meadow, after lieut, gen. Hiller had ordered the force there to be supported by two battalions of Anton Mittrowsky's and a battery; on which the lagers, St. George's, and two battalions of Vienna volunteers, drove him from his advantageous position, which he never afterwards attempted to recover.

At about this time the left wing of the corps was likewise placed in security by 3 batteries sent by the lieut, gen. to support the general of cavalry, count Bellegarde, & the latter maintained his ground against the most desperate attacks of the enemy: the lieut. gen. Hiller kept his position on the left flank of the enemy, and the victory was decided in this quarter. The corps was therefore again formed in two lines, and thus awaited the approaching events.

Corps of the General of Cavalry, Count Bellegarde.

Count Bellegarde having received a message from gen. Wacquant that the enemy was assembling in force before Aspern, towards the Bushy Meadow, and apparently had in view an assault upon that point, was just going to throw a fresh battalion of Argenteau's into Aspern, when the enemy in heavy columns of infantry and cavalry, supported by a numerous artillery, began to advance upon the centre of the corps in the

The troops stationed at Aspern, exhausted as they were with the incessant fire kept up during the night, were unable to withstand the impetuosity of the attack: their ammunition both for artillery and musquetry began to fail, and general Wacquant retreated in good order to the church-yard. This post, gained at so dear a rate, was again taken from him, after several attacks sustained in conjunction with lieut, general Hiller; the place was alternately taken and lost, till at length the superiority of our fire obliged the enemy to abandon the houses, and a last assault of Hiller's corps prevented all farther attempts.

From the moment of the retaking of Aspern it became possible to oppose an offensive movement to the enemy advancing upon the centre, and to open upon his left flank a communication. The defence of Aspern was therefore left entirely to Hiller's corps, and while count Bellegarde occupied his right wing on Aspern, he formed his left and the centre in the direction of Essingen, in such a manner that, by degrees, he gained the right flank of the enemy, compelled him to retreat, and, by the complete effect of the artillery, brought to the whole space from Aspern to Esslingen, - ority in numbers. gave him a most severe defeat.

tic conflict. The enemy's infantry was drawn up in large divisions, and between it the whole of the heavy cavalry was formed en masses. The general of cavalry prince Liehtenstein, on observing this order of battle, perceived the necessity of keeping up a close communication with the infantry placed near him : he therefore drew up his right wing en echequier, behind the corps of infantry, but kept his left wing together, titude. with reserves posted in the rear.

A prodigious quantity of artillery covered the front of the enemy, who seemed desirous to annihilate our corps by the murderous fire of cannon and howitzers. Upwards of 200 pieces of cannon were engaged on both sides and the oldest soldiers never recollected to have witnessed so tremendous Vain was every effort to shake the intrepidity of the Austrian troops. Napoleon rode through his ranks, and according to he report of the prisoners, made them acquainted with the destruction of his bridge, but added that he had himself ordered it to be broke down, because in this case there would be no alternative but victory or death. Soon afterwards the whole af the enemy's line put itself in motion, and the cavalry made its principal attack on the point where the corps of cavalry of prince Lichtenstein communicated with the left wing of lieutenant general the prince of Hohenzollern.-The engagement now became general; the regiments of Rohan, d'Aspre, Joseph Coilored and Stein, repulsed all the attacks of the enemy. The generals were every where at the head of their troops, and inspired them with courage and pereverance. The archduke himself seized on the colors of Zach's, and the battalion, which had already begun to give way, followed with new enthusiasm his heroic example. Most of those who surrounded him were wounded, his adjutant general, count Colleredo, received a ball in his hand, the wound from which was considered dangerous, a squeeze of the hand signified to him the concern of his sympathizing commander, who filled with the contempt of death, new fought forglory and for his country?

The attacks of our impenetrable corps, both with the sabre and the bayonet, so rapidly repeated and so impetuous, as to be unparalloled in military annals, frustrated all the intentions of the enemy.

He was beaten at all points, and astonished at such undaunted intrepidity, he was o bliged to abandon the field of battles

About this time lieut, gen, the prince of Hohenzollern observed on his left wing, near Esslingen, a chasm which had been formed during the heat of the engagement, and afforded an advantageous point of attack. ---Freisch's regiment, commanded by colones Meesery, was ordered thither in three corps and repulsed four regiments of cavalry, acaccompanied with infantry and artillery. The corps remained in the position which they had taken, till the grenadiers of the reserve which the archduke had ordered forward from Brientenlee, arrived to relieve the bat talions exhausted with the sanguinary conflict, and contined the attack upon the centre of the enemy's position, Lieut. gen D'Aspre penetrated with the four battation of grenadiers of Pizezinsky, Putcany, Scovaux and Scarlack, without firing a shot to the enemy's cannon, where he was flanked by such a destructive fire from Essingen, tha nothing but the presence of the archduke. who hastened to the spot, could have induced his grenadiers to maintain their ground Captain count Dombasle had already reach ed the enemy's battery, when he was wound ed by two ba'ls, and quitted the field. About noon the archduke ordered a new assault upon Esslingen, which was immediately undertaken by field marshal lieut. D'Aspre, with the grenadier battalions of Kirchenbetter and Scovaux on the left, and Scarlach and Gregory in front. Five times did these gallant troops rush up to the very walls of the houses, burning internally, and placed in a state of defence; some of the grenadiers thrust their bayonets into the enemy's loop holes; but their efforts were fruitless, for their antagonists fought the fight of despair. The archduke ordered the grenadiers to take up their former position, and when they afterwards volunteered to renew the assault, he would not permit them as the enemy was then in full retreat.

Corps of Field Marshal Lieutenant Prince

Rosenberg.

Both divisions of this corps, which, in advancing to the engagement, had composed the 4th and 5th columns, were formed before the break of day for a new attack, for which the enemy likewise made preparabear upon the left wing, which commanded tion on his side, bet with a manifest superi-

The village was already gained, & his battalions advancing on the left, obliged the enemy, drawn up in several lines to vield .--The most violent cannonade was kept up incessantly on both sides, and it was sustained by the troops with the greatest for-

Favored by a fog, which suddenly came on, the enemy's heavy cavalry ventured to attack on all sides the corps formed by Sztarray's and Hiller's regiments of infantry.-These brave fellows received them with fixed bayonets, and at the last moment poured in their fire with such effect, that the enemy was compelled to betake himself to flight with considerable loss. Five times were these attacks on Sztarray's and Hiller's regiments repeated, and each time they were repelled with equal courage and reso lution. The cavalry contributed all that lay in their power to the pursuit of the enemy and the support of the infantry.

Coburg's, the archduke Louis's, and Czaforisky's regiments belonging to the division of lieut, gen. Dedevich, stationed or the right, renewed the exertions of the pre ceding day, with the same distinction and the same success. After this severe conflict the enemy seem to have no inclination to expose himself to any fresh disaster, and confine himself merely to the operation of his superior artillery.

About 11 A. M. prince Rosenberg receiv ed orders from the archduke, commander in chief, to make a new attack upon Esslingen and a message to the same effect was sent to lieut. gen. Dedovich, who commanded the right division of this corps.

Prince Rosenberg immediately formed two columns of attack under the conduct of lieut. generals princes Hohenlohe and Rohan, while lieut, general Dedovich ad vanced against the citatles of the place, and the magazines surrounded with walls and ditches.

The attack was made with redoubled bravery, and our troops rushed with irresistible impetuosity into the village. Still, how ever, they found it impossible to maintain this post, into which the enemy kept continually throwing new reinforcements, whi h was of the utmost importance for covering his retreat, which he already resolved upon, and which he defended with an immense sacrifice of lives. Prince Rosenberg therefore resolved to confine himself to the obscinate maintenance of his own position, to secure the left flank of the army, and to encrease the embarrassment of the enemy by an incessant fire from all the batteries.

In the night between the 22d and 23d the enemy accomplished his retreat to the Lobau, and at three in the morning his rear guard also had evacuated Esslingen and all the towns which he had occupied on the left bank of the Danube. Some divisions pursued him closely, and took possession as near as possible of the necessary posts of observation.

Thus terminated a conflict of two days, which will be ever memorable in the annals of the world, and in the history of war.-It was the most obstinate and bloody that has occurred since the commencement of the revolution.

It was decisive for the glory of the Austrian arms, for the preservation of the monarchy, and for the correction of the public

The infantry has entered upon a new and briliant career, and by the firm confidence it has manifested in its own energies, has paved the way to new victories. The enemy's cavalry has seen its acquired, but hitherto untried glory, dissipated by the masses of our battalions, whose cool intrepidity it was unable to endure.

Cavalry and artillery have surpassed themselves in valor, and in the space of two days have performed atchievements sufficient for a whole campaign.

Three pieces of cannon, 7 ammunition waggons, 17,000 French muskets, and about 3,000 cuirasses fell into the hands of the conqueror. The loss on both sides was very great; this, and the circumstance that very few prisoners were taken by either party, proves the determination of the combatants either to conquer or die.

From the Boston Palla fuon, Sept. 5 with Evelina, which arrived yesterday Halifax, we received papers to the hult. There had been no recent arrivals that place from Europe.

HALIFAX, August 25. We last evening received American papers from Boston to the 15th inst. inclusive and from the Nation Intelligencer of the 11th, we have copied the proclamation and dreular letter, issued by the president of he U.S. These proceedings do not indieate any extraordinary warmth or asperity, in the part of the American government; ot app ar to result merely from the state to which the affairs of G. Britain and America are reverted in consequence of his majese's ministers having declared the recent eeedings of Mr. Erskine unauthorised.

stract of a letter from an American gentleman of the first respectability at Natchiteches, dated July 14th, 1809.

"Several persons are now here from exico. They inform that the government of that place have determined osend every Frenchman out of the kingdom and its dependencies. Should this be he case they will no doubt emigrate to the mks of the Red river. Sixty families rom Cuba have already arrived in this vilhe and many more are daily expected .-hen we reflect upon the disaffection of the Prench settlers to the government of the States, with their present and excted accession of strength, our situation mes truly critical and alarming. Gov. borne, doutless with a view of showing wisdom and popularity of his administion, has grossly misrepresented the dissition of the people of this country, and creby lulled the government into a fatal urity. It will be recollected that when e memorable expedition of general Wilmeon to the Sabine was projected, the renchmen were called upon for militia duopenly resisted the authority that sumned them, and declared that they would ther unite with the enemy. At that time min was in alliance with France, and our oles considered the cause of the former wer as their own, as it was the cause of ance. Nevertheless gov. Claiborne shortalterwards in a pompous proclamation, ared that the Louisianians had made, and ever would make a stand against every nemy, foreign or domestic, that should atpt any thing against the peace or soveguty of the U. States, praising their paam and extolling their valor.

By these things the government have from imposed upon and misled. The voice bruth has made no impression upon those should be the guardians of our rights. he have told them of our danger: they e answered : "It is a calumny-the erv a faction to which we will turn a deaf But the time is at hand when it will known, but I fear too late, who have den the faithful sentinels and who the de-The Frenchmen are ripe for reevery day discovers some new proof t disaffection; they say they are subms are entirely different from their own; people, the benefit of whose laws they ot appreciate, and whom they always unon, not as fellow citizens but as Conscious of their strength and s how considerably it will be augnted, they look upon the few troops in arisons here with the utmost contempt, ad holdly deride our small military estab

GOD knows what will be the result. Our apprehensions increase with the knowledge of conspiracy at the head of which is Le Blanque, whose emissaries here have lately heen so active as to convince us that the meditated blow will speedily be struck."

TO MILLERS.

I HAVE invented a machine called a Wheat Rubber, for which I obtained a patent on the first day of this month. This machine may be seen in operation in the mill of Nathaniel Ellicott, Occoquan. Those millers who feel an interest in investigating its marit and have not an opportunity of visiting Occoquan, may be fully informed by application to Mr. Efficott by letter. My Uneat-Rubber, I do verily believe is upon entire new principles, the cost of erecting it a trifle, the materils of which it is emposed easily attainable in any part of our country, and the plan simple in the extreme : any workmanof common capacity will be enabled to erectit from description only. Practical millers know, that in a great proportion of the wheat that comes to market (iron the manner it is stacked in the fields by the farmers and exposed to the weather) a number o sprouted and unsound grains mingle with the mass, and has eluded the ingenuity of the miller to separate it from the sound gram-they also know those unsound grains injure materially the taste and color of flour -my machine not only frees the wheat of stone, onion, cockle, dirt, &c. but does absolutely take from it every unsound grain, from what cause soever it may have been injured, as my machine will not let any unsound wheat pass it-millers may have their screen wire much finer than hitherto used, and thereby save considerably—it will also be found that the grain in passing the rubber, is polished, and that even the eyes of the wheat is picked perfectly clean of dust or dirt Some instances having occurred of certificates being obtained, saying much more in favor of a new invention than the public are willing to a lmit after trial-I hope it will be a sufficient apology for my taking a different course. My price for the privilege of using the rubber is fitty dollars for each prir of wheat stones the mill contains.

Letters directed to me post paid shall be attended to.

James Deneale. Dumfries, Va. July d2wlaw2m 10 ----11. Domestic Manufactures.

HE subscriber proposes erecting at the L Cen re Milis, near Alexandria, a Machine for earding Wool, and expects to have it ready to run by the 30th of the present month. It will card the wool and form it into rolls for the spinning wheel, or into batts for hatters, or other purposes. The advantage of having wool prepared by these machines for the purpose of manufacturing into yarn over that which is carded by hand, is generally acknowledged, as being the cheappst and most periect in its operation. Those errons who may include to give encouragement to this establishment, may depend on the utmost punctuality as to time and unremitted attention in the execution of the work The wool when carded into rolls will be packed in such manner as to preserve it in the most perfect state for spinning, and may be hansported any reasonable distance without injury. Wool, sent to the carder, must be cle n washed, clear of burrs, small sticks or Sther extraneous matter and as orted in such manner as may suit the owner; and each quality shall be kept seperate. The expence of carding will be eight cents for that which is made into rolls, and five cents for batts per lb. payable at the time of delivering, or payment will be received in wool of good quality at 40 cents per pound, as may suit the convenience of the owner.
